THE THIRD DEGREE FOR TWO SUSPECTS.

Colored Men Believed to Be Guilty of New Haven Robberies

PUT THROUGH SEVERE ORDEAL.

Both Joe French and James Porter Claim That They Were in Mt Pleasant on the Night of the Robberies But there Are Witnesses to the Contrary—Will Be Given Hearing.

For three hours this morning Joe French and James Porter, two negroes arrested on charges of entering the home of Robert F Sheppard and stealing $30 in money and a gold watch from James Sheppard and attempting to rob several other residences in the town were examined at the local police station. The investigation was conducted by County Detective McBeth assisted by Constable Joseph Crossland R F Sheppard and Dr C W Callagher

Porter was arrested last night in Connellsville by Constable Charles Wilson while walking about the streets He and French are closely related and resemble each other very much When Porter was arrested last night the officers put him through a rigid examination and this morning when French was brought before County Detective McBeth and those who are assisting him their stories differed to a considerable extent

The general belief is that both the men were implicated in the robbing and afterward fixed up an alibi for their appearance in Scottdale and Mt Pleasant, but became drunk in the meantime and could not remember all the details Both men claim that they are innocent and that on last Friday night they were in Scottdale and Mt Pleasant They both stated that they were well acquainted in these towns but when they were asked for the names of some of the persons who knew and saw them they could not remember any person except several bar tenders of whom they did not have any further acquaintance than purchasing drinks Porter had on his person a bottle of iodine partly used which he had purchased in Scottdale

The men agreed on the main points of their whereabouts on Friday night but their details conflicted to a great extent and the story of Porter told to the officers when he was arrested last night and the story given at the investigation were very much different and contradictory Those who are working up the case have very good witnesses to testify that both French and Porter were in Connellsville on the evening of the robbery and the morning after the robbery they indulged in a drinking bout The officers also have other incriminating evidence that they do not wish to have publicly known at this time

The evidence adduced at the hearing this morning was copied in shorthand by Miss Bassett an expert stenographer in the employ of John H Risheck, and will be used for the hearing which will probably occur in Magistrate W P Clark's office this evening Officers will go to Scottdale this afternoon and investigate the stories told by French and Porter about their being in these towns upon the night of the robbery It is believed that the two negroes have attempted to fix matters so that they could prove an alibi as to where they were at the time of the robbery and the officers will investigate that part of the case very thoroughly

LIFE OF THE COKE REGION.

The life of the Connellsville coke region has long been a matter of serious concern to sorrowing rival coal regions. There has been a disposition on the part of operators and others interested elsewhere to hurry up the funeral of this region, to put it out of business and bury it, in order that its inheritance may be divided among its many and expectant heirs. The Washington Reporter quotes a Pittsburg coal dealer as saying:

It will be but a short time until coking coal in Fayette county will be a thing of the past; it will follow that the business will be carried on extensively in Washington and Greene counties. The coke ovens are disappearing from Fayette county at the rate of a thousand a year. At this rate in but a short time new ones must be constructed where there is coking coal, such as is found in a large part of Washington and Greene counties. The many test wells put down at various points in the two counties are simply to ascertain where the best quality of coking coal is located, and it is reported that the best in the world is found in a large part of Greene county and along Upper Ten Mile creek and some of its branches in Southern Washington county.

It will be many years yet before the coking coal of the Connellsville region is exhausted. Its ovens are not disappearing quite so fast as has been stated, and for every abandoned coke works a dozen new ones have sprung up. When the Connellsville coal vein is exhausted, there are other veins beneath it that can and will be worked. We will not be out of the coal and coke business for some years to come. The Dunbar Furnace Company is preparing to open up the Freeport vein on the Mt. Braddock farm. They are already mining this coal from under the hills between Dunbar and the Youghiogheny river near Connellsville, and are coking it in their Semet-Solvay ovens. It makes an excellent grade of coke, good enough for use in the Dunbar furnaces.

Frederick C. Keighley, who is an authority on coal and mining matters, declares of the Freeport coal that "within twenty-five years the mining and manufacturing interests will have to depend upon it entirely for coal and coke supplies." The Freeport vein lies some sixty feet below the Pittsburg vein, and covers a much greater area than the latter. Much of the Freeport vein compares favorably with the Pittsburg seam, but it is harder to work. The principal fault is the presence of ribs of slate and stony bone. There may be from three to five streaks of these impurities in a six-foot vein. To make the highest grade of coke, the coal should be washed. The cost of mining it and making it into coke will, therefore, be expensive compared with the costs of Connellsville coke production; but, even with these disadvantages, it is evident that the Freeport coal is the coal of the future for coking purposes, and the Connellsville region has lots of it.

We will still be in the coke business a quarter of a century hence and for a century or more after that. No man need start to pack his goods for an exodus from the Connellsville region. There's plenty of time to move.

BOILED WATER.

The State Commissioner of Health says there is no safety outside of boiled water. Connellsville has not hitherto regarded it necessary to boil any of its water, but the presence of a number of diphtheria cases at points along the Youghiogheny river between Connellsville and Confluence suggests the importance of our local health authorities looking after them to ascertain whether or not any drainage from disease-infected houses reaches the river, and if so to take the proper steps to prevent it.

Our boasted water supply is threatened from above at all seasons of the year, and nothing but the eternal vigilance of our health authorities and the water company management will guard it from contamination. Until the State shall have passed laws forbidding the pollution of the waters its people depend upon for drinking and cooking, each community will have to protect itself as best it may against others on the streams above.

In this work, the State Commissioner of Health stands ready to assist them, having express authority under the Act of 1905 "to order nuisances detrimental to the public health, or the causes of disease and mortality, to be abated and removed." We don't want tasteless boiled water. We want pure, fresh, sweet and wholesome mountain water, like we are accustomed to. It isn't necessary to have it polluted with diphtheria or typhoid germs when a little care on the part of infected households will prevent it.

OUR BIG FLOATING DEBT.

The report of the Borough Auditors, published elsewhere in this issue, betrays evidences of careful and thorough and conscientious work, and suggests how easily complete and accurate information touching the corporate finances is possible to be had at any time and upon short notice by a proper system of borough bookkeeping.

The report shows the indebtedness of the borough to be $165,302, as follows: Bonds, $118,000; certificates of indebtedness, $42,700; accounts payable, $4,602. The outstanding certificates of indebtedness have reached a figure that makes it necessary to pause and consider whether it is not much better business to emit another bond issue to take them up. The certificates are drawing 6 per cent. interest. A bond issue can be floated at 4 or 5 per cent. It is hardly possible to take up this indebtedness out of the revenues of the borough. It is true that borough collections seem to be slow, much slower than they ought to be but if all the outstanding accounts receivable and tax duplicates were paid off in full, to the last red cent, the borough would not have enough money by $17,500 to settle its floating debt

The policy of the Town Council should be to make closer collections and out of these collections to pay off as much as possible of the certificates of indebtedness. The remainder should be taken up as soon as possible with a refunding bond issue.

THE BURGLING BUSINESS.

The spring burgling trade in New Haven and Connellsville has not been as profitable as it has in other places. The grand opening in New Haven only resulted in a prompt closing up of the enterprising midnight mechanics. It is safe to say that they have retired permanently from the business

The new wholesale establishment on this side of the river is fitted up with special delivery wagons and all the proper equipment of an up-to-date and progressive "pinching" establishment with "fence" attachments. This firm has gone about the business in a systematic manner that suggests long experience. Moreover, the members are not discriminating. They rob stores as well as households.

The perniciously active New Haven authorities have run their burglars down and out. Connellsville's "finest" will have to get a gait on or they will be left in the race for the laurel crown that Justice gives to her ablest and most faithful soldiers.

Connellsville ought to take a census. Either the police or the assessors could be employed to do the work. The town would then know whether it is a city or not.

This is the season for gathering greens. All greens are not healthy and there should be some discrimination as to what goes into the pot. A Mucklerat miner was so badly poisoned by eating greens that it took five hours of the doctor's time to get him out of danger.

The murderer of Policeman Pore of Mt. Pleasant is said to have been captured at Williamsport. Lindsay has been seen in numerous places. It is about time he was being apprehended.

The recent blowing up of several locomotive boilers suggests the importance of pure water for boiler use. Good water sometimes comes high, but bad water may make the boiler go sky-high.

The Railroad Rate bill is reported to be making progress in the Senate. "Everything comes to him who waits," if he lives long enough.

Senator Knox vows he wasn't thinking of the Presidency when he visited his old Brownsville home, but of the "old swimmin' hole." The waters were deep in the old hole, but the Senator has been in deeper and more dangerous waters since and has always swum bravely out.

The pension business is no longer a government monopoly.

The beacon lights of fiery enthusiasm which Colonel Likins has kindled on the hilltops of Fayette county are reflected in Westmoreland, and the Prohibs over that way are lighting up the answering signal.

A Connellsville boy and a Democrat has been made Medical Inspector of Pittsburg's Police Department, but then he was raised in the "Bloody Third," where politicians grow as naturally as grass in the spring.

The Punxsy miners are a spunky lot.

The B. & O. is retiring from the coal business and will hereafter devote its entire attention to the hauling trade. This is an age of specialties. One may not be a digger and a driver too.

The Retort Courteous.

The Latrobe Bulletin expresses the hope that West Latrobe and Oakville will "line up" with Latrobe.

Editor Weiteman should keep on saying sweet things and making goo-goo eyes at the suburbs. It takes a winning newspaper to make a greater town.

—X—

The McKeesport Times wants the Councils to create a department of building inspection in the interest of fire protection and proper buildings.

An excellent idea which every growing town cannot adopt too soon. It is necessary to protect the town from catastrophe and to prevent architectural eyesores in the community.

—X—

The Monessen Independent says gambling is not a crime, but a pastime, a little recreation for the toiler, so that he can rest himself and make a dollar on the side.

But what if the other fellow who toils nor spins not make dollar. Aye, there's the rub!

—X—

The Morgantown Post on the people to vote for the bridge bond issue without regard to the trolley companies, and urges the trolley companies to consolidate and extend their lines instead of paralleling them.

That's right. Push ahead Don't stop to haggle.

—X—

The McKeesport News is ambitious to annex Glassport.

But it objects to being annexed by Pittsburg. Most doctors don't like their own medicine.

—X—

The New Castle News notes with satisfaction that a man in that locality has been arrested for furnishing false information to a newspaper.

The victim of the publication was a fair-minded man. He didn't rush into court and bring a libel suit against the paper, but he inquired into the circumstances, found the real libeller and proceeded against him.

—X—

The Scottdale Independent denounces the filthy habit of spitting all over the sidewalks and calls on the police to put a stop to it

There are spitters and spitters. The man who walks along and expectorates in the street is not so bad that he may not be tolerated, but the human pigs who sit along the sidewalks and set them a swimming with tobacco juice should be driven to the borough pen.

—X—

The Jeannette Dispatch asserts that the town's drinking fountain is more ornamental than useful for the reason that it is hedged about by so many silly restrictions as to use.

Public benefaction should be as broad in their application as they are in their theory.

Resolved, That we, as a union in brotherly love pay tribute to his memory by expressing our sorrow and extend to his father our deepest sympathy in their bereavement, and, be it further

How Would You Like to Help

Us make this month of May the best month in amount of business that this store has ever experienced. We will do our share in having pretty goods at money-saving prices, but we need your help and we promise to make it worth your while to give us this help. We want you to consider this your home store; to feel that you are interested and to help us as each month rolls by make this business bigger and better. Those of you who have traded here in the past have made this business just what it is. You can do as much towards shaping its future business as the store can of itself. In almost the first advertisement this store ever put out we asked that you would consider this your own home store and that you would take an interest in it. We know of no better proposition to make you now than we made you then, and that is why we ask you to help us make this month of May a record-breaking month in this store's history. When it comes to figuring up the amount of business done you'll derive just as much benefit from this as the store does, every bit.

Dress Goods at 50c the yard.

Is one of the inducements that we have to offer for your business during this month of May at the Dress Goods counter. The best assortment that we ever had to show at this price. Plaids and stripes, and checks and plain goods, every color that's good and an extra lot of the different shades of gray that are so scarce everywhere this spring.

Silks at $1.00 the yard.

For separate waists or skirts, or for full dresses. Silks that tell you that this store ought to be the one you depend upon for your silks. Colors and shades and patterns that you'll not find elsewhere in this vicinity; qualities likewise, if you'll consider prices.

India Linens

At 10c, 15c, 20c, 25c and 35c the yard that are at these prices bargains that cannot be duplicated here or elsewhere when these are gone. Bought before the advance in cotton goods. Plenty of every grade, enough for a month's selling.

White Wash Suits

From $6.00 up to $25.00 Ask you to examine the material that is in these suits. See how well they are made, how neatly they are trimmed; see how they fit. Willing to have you judge of the entire showing by the cheapest suit. You owe it to your pocketbook not to buy a wash suit until you have seen these.

Val. Laces and Insertions.

No matter where you go you'll find these scarce this spring. Plenty of laces, but desirable patterns are scarce everywhere. We have more of these now than we've had to show for some time, more than we'll have later.

Stinson Velvet Carpets at $1.25 the yard.

This price means made, laid and lined. We know of no better carpet for this price; been selling this make carpet ever since this was a Carpet Store, and that means something like a quarter of a century. They are made just as good now as they were when we commenced to sell them. Clean, bright patterns that are just what you want.

Butterick Patterns.

That's the kind this store handles, the kind of patterns that we think you want. New patterns and magazines are here now for May. Glad to mail you each month the Butterick fashion plates if you'll send us your name and address.

THE HOME OF THE OUTFIT

CREATES GREAT INTEREST IN HOME-MAKING

AARON'S has become Fayette county's most potent factor in the creation of new homes and actually making marriage possible between young folks whose limited income has proved an obstacle in the way of happiness. We have swept the board clean of competition in the matter of Home Outfits—not through any intention to interfere with the trade of other houses—but because of the splendor of our outfits, their excellence of quality, beauty of design, the remarkably low price and terms offered to purchasers. We have become the Home of the Outfit through merit and nothing else. We are giving better values and accommodation simply because our tremendous output and resources warrant it and not because of any sentimental reason. In other words we are taking full advantage of conditions so that it will be utterly impossible to do as well at any other establishment in the city. Our outfits stand in a class of their own. They are worth every penny we ask for them. They are guaranteed piece by piece and we are entirely too sensible and ambitious to permit any concern of any description to equal us in any of the vital points or even in apparently trifling details. Our proposition to you is simple, attractive and substantial, and we don't care how small your income you can get an outfit at Aaron's any hour of the day and receive the same treatment and consideration accorded to the millionaire. This is already the state's greatest furniture organization and this Spring it is adding, and will continue to add to its laurels in a way that you will actualy be compelled to look to us as the real source of supply.

FAMINE IS FEARED.

Food Supply in San Francisco Being Rapidly Exhausted by Needy Ones.

ENOUGH ON HAND FOR 21 DAYS

Real Work of Rebuilding Has Begun.

Thirty Big Structures Planned.

Work to Begin When New Building Laws Have Been Enacted.

San Francisco, May 1.—With no immediate prospect that conditions will be so normalized that the community will be able to feed and take care of itself for several weeks, the citizens committee has begun to evolve some way to provide against a possible failure of supplies. Mayor Schmitz has informed the general committee that 700 carloads of food and supplies had been distributed since April 18, and transportation lines had information of only 108 cars now on the way.

ALL THAT IS LEFT OF GRACE CHURCH.

"If," said the mayor, "this information is correct, we will soon be worse off than we were a week ago. If the information has gone abroad through the country that we are amply supplied, it is most unfortunate, for it is apparent that we are not. It is not even known how much money we can depend upon with which to purchase supplies, for you have heard from Mr. Phelan on several occasions that part at least of this money subscribed by individuals or companies in the east is disbursed through private agents here. While it is true that contributions of money will be very much more to the purpose than contributions of supplies, it should be notified to the world if the one is not available the other will be most gratefully received."

Enough Food for 21 Days.

Chairman Phelan of the committee of finance said he had as yet received no reply to his telegram to Secretary of War Taft asking what the relief committee might expect out of the fund of $2,500,000 appropriated by congress. He had information, however, that the $500,000 transmitted Saturday by Secretary Taft was given by him as president of the national Red Cross and was not a contribution from the government.

Basing his calculations on reports received within the last 24 hours Gen. Greely said that the entire available food supply, including shipments on hand and those enroute, would be sufficient under the new ration plan for the present destitute population for 21 days.

Reconstruction of San Francisco has begun in earnest. As a result many destitute men secured work. Distribution of food to the homeless began on the army ration plan as evolved by Maj. Gen. Greely and the output of supplies was lessened so that 21 days food is now in sight.

Signs of renewal of industrial activity were apparent in many parts of the burned area and the work of clearing away debris preparatory to rebuilding was in progress in a score of places. It was said that plans for more than 30 large buildings have been drawn and will be submitted to the authorities as soon as the new building laws are promulgated.

Planning for New City.

The mayor advised the board of supervisors that he would appoint a committee consisting of engineers, architects, builders and lawyers to prepare plans for laying out streets and boulevards and reconstructing San Francisco.

Street car lines are extending in all directions and the United Railways company has promised to give the people within a short time a better system of transit than existed before the fire.

Hundreds of physicians and dentists were financially ruined by the great fire. Their libraries, accounts, instruments and diplomas were lost. Their practice has been dispelled. When the first alarm of fire came nearly every physician in town plunged into relief work and had no time for days afterward to think of anything else. It is estimated that 500 physicians have been left destitute. Measures are being taken for their relief.

Of San Francisco's 76 school buildings, 23 were wiped out or made useless. The department of education has declared the school year at an end and has announced an indefinite vacation.

Beverly of Graustark

By GEORGE BARR M'CUTCHEON, Author of "Graustark" etc.

CHAPTER XVII

SHE was torn by conflicting emotions That the two friends had surreptitiously exchanged messages doubtless by an arrangement perfected since he had entered the service—possibly within the week—could not be disputed When and how had they planned the accidental meeting? What had been their method of communication? And above all what were the contents of the messages exchanged Were they of a purely personal nature or did they comprehend injury to the principality of Graustark? Beverly could not in her heart, feel that Baldos was doing anything inimical to the country he served, and yet her duty and loyalty to Yetive made it imperative that the transaction should be reported at once A word to Quinnox and Ravone would be seized and searched for the mysterious paper This, however looked utterly unreasonable, for the vagabonds were armed and in force while Yetive was accompanied by but three men who could be depended upon Baldos, under the conditions was not to be reckoned upon for support On the other hand, if he meant no harm it would be cruel even fatal to expose him to this charge of duplicity And while she turned these troublesome alternatives over in her mind the opportunity to act was lost Ravone and his men were gone and the harm, if any was intended was done

From time to time she glanced back at the guard His face was imperturbable even sphinx like in its steadiness She decided to hold him personally to account At the earliest available moment she would demand an explanation of his conduct threatening him if necessary If he proved obdurate there was but one course left open to her She would deliver him up to the justice he had outraged Hour after hour went by and Beverly suffered more than she could have told The dim age was done and the chance to undo it was slipping farther and farther out of her grasp She began to look upon herself as the vilest of traitors There was no silver among the clouds that marred her thoughts that afternoon

It was late in the day when the party returned to the castle tired out Beverly was the only one who had no longing to seek repose after the fatiguing trip Her mind was full of unrest It was necessary to question Baldos at once There could be no peace for her until she learned the truth from him The strain became so great that at last she sent word for him to attend her in the park He was to accompany the men who carried the sedan chair, in which she had learned to sit with a delightful feeling of being in the eighteenth century

In a far corner of the grounds now gray in the early dusk Beverly bade the bearers to set down her chair and leave her in quiet for a few minutes The two men withdrew to a respectful distance whereupon she called Baldos to her side Her face was flushed with anxiety

"You must tell me the truth about that transaction with Ravone" she said coming straight to the point

"I was expecting this, your highness" said he quietly The shadows of night were falling but she could distinguish the look of anxiety in his dark eyes

"Well?" she insisted impatiently

"You saw the notes exchanged?"

"Yes yes and I command you to tell me what they contained It was the most daring thing I —"

"Your highness I cannot tell you what passed between us It would be treacherous" he said firmly Beverly gasped in sheer amazement

"Treacherous Good heaven, sir! To whom do you owe allegiance—to me or to Ravone and that band of tramps?" she cried with eyes afire

"To both your highness" he answered so firmly that she was for the moment abashed "I am loyal to you—loyal to the heart's core—and yet I am loyal to that unhappy band of tramps, as you choose to call them They are my friends You are only my sovereign"

"And you won't tell me what passed between you" she said angered by this epigrammatic remark

"I cannot and be true to myself"

"Oh you are a glorious soldier!" she exclaimed with fierce sarcasm in her voice "You speak of being true! I surprise you in the very act of —"

"Stay your highness" he said coldly "You are about to call me a spy and a traitor Spare me I implore you the humiliation I have sworn to serve you faithfully and loyally I have not deceived you, and I shall not Paul Baldos has wronged no man no woman What passed between Ravone and myself concerns us only It had nothing to do with the affairs of Graustark"

"Of course you would say that You wouldn't be fool enough to tell the truth [illegible] I am the fool I have trusted you and if any [illegible] is wrong I alone am to blame [illegible] Graustark to danger Oh [illegible] out this afternoon"

"I knew you would not" he said with unconcern

"Insolence! What do you mean by [illegible]" she cried in confusion

"[illegible] knew I was doing [illegible] You shielded me then as you have shielded me from the beginning"

"I don't see why I sit here and let you talk to me like that," she said, feeling the symptoms of collapse "You have not been fair with me Baldos You are laughing at me now and calling me a witless little fool You—you did something today that shakes my faith to the very bottom I never can trust you again Good heaven, I hate to confess to—to every one that you are not honest"

"Your highness!" he implored, coming close to the chair and bending over her "Before God I am honest with you Believe me when I say that I have done nothing to injure Graustark I cannot tell you what it was that passed between Ravone and me but I swear on my soul that I have not been disloyal to my oath Won't you trust me? Won't you believe?" His breath was fanning her ear, his voice was eager She could feel the intensity of his eyes

"Oh, I don't—don't know what to say to you" she murmured "I have been so wrought up with fear and disappointment You'll admit that it was very suspicious, won't you?" she cried almost pleadingly

"Yes yes" he answered His hand touched her arm, perhaps unconsciously She threw back her head to give him a look of rebuke Their eyes met and after a moment both were full of pleading Her lips parted but the words would not come She was afterward more than thankful for this because his eyes impelled her to give voice to amazing things that suddenly rushed to her head

"I want to believe you" she whispered softly

"You must—you do I would give you my life You have it now It is in your keeping and with it my honor Trust me I beseech you I have trusted you"

"I brought you here —" she began, defending him involuntarily "But, Baldos you forget that I am the princess" She drew away in sudden shyness her cheeks rosy once more her eyes filling with the most distressingly unreasonable tears He did not move for what seemed hours to her She heard the sharp catch of his breath and felt the repression that was mastering some unwelcome emotion in him

Lights were springing into existence in all parts of the park Beverly saw the solitary window in the monastery far away and her eyes fastened on it as if for sustenance in this crisis of her life—this moment of surprise this moment when she felt him laying hands upon the heart she had not suspected of treason Twilight was upon them the sun had set and night was rushing up to lend unfair advantage to the forces against which they were struggling The orchestra in the castle was playing something soft and tender—oh so far away

"I forget that I am a slave your highness" he said at last and his voice thrilled her through and through She turned quickly and to her utter dismay found his face and eyes still close to hers glowing in the darkness

"Those men over there" she whispered helplessly—"they are looking at you"

"Now I thank God eternally" he cried softly "You do not punish me you do not rebuke me God, there is no night"

"You—you must not talk like that" she cried pulling herself together suddenly "I cannot permit it Baldos You forget who you are sir"

"Ah yes your highness" he said before he stood erect "I forget that I was a suspected traitor Now I am guilty of leze majesty" Beverly felt herself grow hot with confusion

"What am I to do with you?" she cried in perplexity her heart beating shamefully "You swear you are honest and yet you won't tell me the truth Now don't stand like that! You are as straight as a ramrod and I know your dignity is terribly offended I may be foolish but I do believe you intend no harm to Graustark You cannot be a traitor"

"I will some day give my life to repay you for those words, your highness" he said Her hand was resting on the side of the chair Something warm touched it and then it was lifted irresistibly Hot passionate lips buried themselves into the white fingers and a glow went into every fiber of her body

"Oh" was all she could say He gently released the hand and threw up his chin resolutely

"I am almost ready to die" he said She laughed for the first time since they entered the park

"I don't know how to treat you," she said in a helpless flutter "You know a princess has many trials in life"

"Not the least of which is womanhood"

"Baldos" she said after a long pause Something very disagreeable had just rushed into her brain "Have you been forgetting all this time that the Princess Yetive is the wife of Grenfall Lorry"

"It has never left my mind for an instant From the bottom of my heart I congratulate him His wife is an angel as well as a princess"

"Well in the code of morals is it quite proper to be so loyal to another man's wife?" she asked and then she trembled He was supposed to know her as the wife of Grenfall Lorry and yet he had boldly shown his love for her.

"It depends altogether on the other man's wife" he said and she looked up quickly It was too dark to see his face but something told her to press the point no further Deep down in her heart she was beginning to rejoice in the belief that he had found her out If he still believed her to be the real princess then he was—but the subject of conversation at least had to be changed

"You say your message to Ravone was of a purely personal nature," she said

"Yes your highness" She did not like the way in which he said "your highness" It sounded as if he meant it

"How did you know that you were to see him today?"

"We have waited for this opportunity since last week Franz was in the castle grounds last Thursday"

"Good heavens! You don't mean it!"

"Yes, your highness He carried a message to me from Ravone That is why Ravone and the others waited for me in the hills"

"Here is what Ravone says"

"You amaze me"

"I have seen Franz often" he confessed easily "He is an excellent messenger"

"So it would seem We must keep a lookout for him He is the go between for you all I see"

"Did you learn to say 'you all' in America?" he asked Her heart gave a great leap There was something so subtle in the query that she was vastly relieved

"Never mind about that sir You won't tell me what you said in your note to Ravone"

"I cannot"

"Well I'll give you one in return If you are perfectly sincere Baldos you will hand that note over to me It shall go no further I swear to you If as you vow it does not jeopardize Graustark Now sir prove your loyalty and your honesty"

He hesitated a long time then from an inner pocket he drew forth a bit of paper

"I don't see why it has not been destroyed" he said regretfully "What a neglectful fool I have been"

"You might have said it had been destroyed" she said happily because he had not said it

"But that would have been a lie Read it your highness and return it to me It must be destroyed"

"It is too dark to read it here" Without a word he handed the paper to her and called the chair bearers to whom he gave instructions that brought her speedily beneath one of the park lamps She afterward recalled the guilty impulse which forced her to sit on the telltale note while the men were carrying her along in the driveway When it was quite safe she slyly opened the missive His hand closed over hers and the note and he bent close once more

"My only fear is that the test will make it impossible for me to kiss your hand again" said he in a strained voice She looked up in surprise

"Then it is really something disloyal?"

"I have called it a test your highness" he responded indignantly

"Well we'll see" she said and forthwith turned her eyes to the all important paper A quick flash crossed her brow, her eyes blinked hopelessly The note was written in the Graustark language!

"I'll read it later Baldos This is no place for me to be reading notes don't you know really it isn't I'll give it back to you tomorrow" she was in haste to say

An inscrutable smile came over his face

"Ravone's information is correct I am now convinced" he said slowly "Pray your highness glance over it now that I may destroy it at once" he persisted

"The light isn't good"

"It seems excellent"

"And I never saw such a miserable scrawl as this He must have written it on horseback and at full gallop"

"It is quite legible your highness"

"I really cannot read the stuff You know his handwriting Read it to me I'll trust you to read it carefully"

"This is embarrassing your highness but I obey of course If you command Here is what Ravone says

We have fresh proof that she is not the princess but the American girl Be exceedingly careful that [illegible] does not lead you into any admissions The Americans are tricky Have little to say to her and guard your tongue well We are all well and are hoping for the best

SENATE MAKES PROGRESS

Will Take Up Amendments to Rate Bill on Friday

Washington May 1—The decision to take up the railroad rate bill on Friday next for amendment under a 15 minute rule means a final vote on the measure at no distant day On some sides in the senate it is stated that the faction demanding a court review amendment has been assured of the necessary strength to adopt such an amendment while other senators claim that this faction has been unable to get the strength to amend the bill and has abandoned the fight

The pride of authorship is said to interfere with an agreement on any particular amendment but prefer not would have to be voted for one of half a dozen any one of which would be satisfactory to the so-called conservative faction Several other senators favoring such a review amendment expressed similar views

Contrary opinions were expressed by Senators Dolliver and Long two of the men who have fought for the bill as it was passed by the house for with so much court review amendment as was agreed upon at a conference at the White House by friends of the bill They stated that they did not believe there were votes enough in the senate to put a broad review amendment into the bill and that they were not sure that the senate wanted any change at all

Declares Vinol is the Best Cod Liver Oil Preparation

There has been a good deal of discussion in Connellsville regarding the merits of cod liver oil preparations and whether or not cod liver oil and emulsions that upset the stomach have any medicinal value therefore the following letter from M A Cassidy Supt Intendent of Schools Lexington Ky will be read with interest

"I am led to state that after having used and tested the different cod liver oil preparations on the market I find Vinol to be far superior to them all It is palatable and pleasant to the taste in fact the oily fishy taste of cod liver oil is done away with entirely and the curative and strengthening properties of Vinol are truly remarkable

Vinol built up my system strength ened my nerves and made a new man of me and I heartily endorse it as the most efficacious and agreeable cod liver oil preparation on the market"

Our local druggist Mr F F Mu[illegible] when asked his opinion in regard to Vinol replied "We firmly believe Vinol to be the greatest preparation of cod liver oil therefore the greatest strengthener and health restorer known to medicine today We have never sold anything in our store equal to Vinol to build up the system strengthen the nerve cure indigestion chronic cough colds bronchitis and incipient consumption or to make growing children robust and give strength and vigor to the aged and to make the weak strong and the sick well

[illegible] this reason that we offer [illegible] back the money in every case where it fails" [illegible] druggist

[illegible]

[illegible] The promoters of the Pittsburg Westmoreland & Somerset have not made public the object they have [illegible] inasmuch as no Western [illegible] origin [illegible] [illegible] [illegible] feeder for the Wabash from the coal fields already tapped by the Pennsylvania and Baltimore & Ohio

FOR MEN AND WOMEN

The new effects this season are most all bought out in the shoemaking. There are no freakish shapes or extreme edges to distract attention from the real qualities of the shoe in fact it is the quality that determines the styles as the new custom [illegible] cannot be produced by unskilled labor with cheap materials The general tone and character of the new styles is most pleasing and the shoe dresses the foot more attractively than for several seasons As the prices are the same as previously it can be seen that the advancing price of leather has not yet affected the retail price

A Remarkable Offering of
Men's Shirts at $1.00

We place on sale today a realy remarkable collection of Men's Negligee Shirts to be sold at $1.00 each.

When the advance samples came in we showed them to a manufacturer of shirts who happened to be in the store at the time and told him we were going to sell them at $1.00. He said, "you are foolish, for I can sell them at wholesale for $13 50 a dozen." Judging by market values we knew that what he said was true.

To further establish our position as to price we have had all of the leading stores in town searched through to see what was the nearest approach in value and according to the judgment of the shopper there was nothing as good anywhere at $1 50.

The shirts are made of excellent madras in blue, tan and gray, ground also, neat black and white effects, either attached or detached cuffs beautifully laundried and perfectly constructed. The collection is as remarable as the price.
